Iconic plane lands in town

AN iconic plane from the Second World War has set up home in Knutsford.

Thanks to Knutsford-based business Oliver Valves, the plane will sit in the company's hangar on the Parkfield Industrial Estate.

Owner Michael Oliver bought the plane from the Royal British Legion but said it will be used by the organisation when it holds fundraising events.

The plane was flown over France, in October 1941, in an attempt to protect Blenheim bombers attacking port installations.

For more about the plane's arrival into the town, turn to page 11.

RAF officers and two officers from the force's police service helped bring the plane to Michael Oliver, founder of Oliver Valves
